

NTA – Value for Money

Are you getting good value for money from the Appropriate Body you use for NQT induction?

- How robust is your current service? In the light of the strengthening QTS Consultation and likely related reform, would your NQT induction process stand external scrutiny?
- Do you incur any additional costs such as support visits should an NQT be struggling?
- Ours is a capped inclusive price per NQT giving you cost certainty, with the economies of scale of a growing scheme returned to schools through a reducing price (see graph below).
- Our online approach minimises the disruption to children’s learning and hidden costs caused by staff being out of school.
- Feedback is provided on every assessment by our experienced quality assurance team.
- NTA was set up specifically to offer this service. We have a dedicated phone line and email enabling us to respond to your queries promptly and to offer exceptionally high levels of customer service.
- Ark, Astrea and Aldridge are some of the National MATs that have chosen NTA to accredit their NQT induction process. NTA provides one consistent robust process and one point of contact across all MAT locations.
- Would your Appropriate Body actually fail an NQT who is not meeting the standards and might go on to fail young people? Our drive is to maintain high standards of teaching nationally.
- Our system is intended to provide you with the peace of mind that your judgements are properly supported and evidenced so that if there is a problem your decisions will be upheld.
